

A 2022 Success Story for... Girl Scouts of Central & Southern NJ

Hiba Farkouchi is a Brownie in Paulsboro Girl Scout troop 68116 who said she loved trying something new. She really loved the Girl Scout meeting where they worked on the Make New Friends badge. They used their names to write positive words about themselves and sang the Brownie song. All of the participants were excited about the opportunity to sell cookies and make friendship bracelets. Kennedy Athey-Berry, a 5th Grade Junior Girl Scout, had this to say during an October 14th troop meeting held at the Gill Memorial Library in Paulsboro: "I'm happy to be able to learn more about Girl Scouts and badges, since we didn't really get to meet in person this past year because of the pandemic. It was really hard to not be able to meet. I really like looking into the Agent of Change Journey and making a pretty bracelet. I'm looking forward to making some new friends and earning badges." During the BGC of Glassboro series, the girls were happy to complete activities centered around the community they live in and the science of happiness. The girls were taught the Girl Scout Promise and Law, and we had discussions about how they related to everyday life.
