A 2021 SUCCESS STORY FEATURING...

DIANA

Diana of Woodbury, NJ read at a third grade level and called Literacy NJ because she wanted to help her grandchildren, ages 13 and 11, with homework. "It's hard to learn when you get old. My brain is slower and I got stuck, then I feel frustrated when I can't understand something that I feel I should be able to understand. Tutoring is wonderful. My tutor Bill is willing to explain things again and again until I understand it. I like to read a lot now. I read my kids easy books. Writing is better now, too, and I understand better when I speak with people. I don't understand everything, but I understand more."

United Way funding has been instrumental in the academic success of adult learners at the lowest levels, like Diana.
